Strength: noun, the inner courage or determination that allows a person to face and deal with difficulties.

Sometimes, you realize that you have more strength than you ever realized. Unfortunately, you usually figure this out the hard way.

Tornado: noun, a violent whirling wind accompanied by a cloud that is shaped like a funnel and moves overland in a narrow path.

Living in Pennsylvania, tornadoes aren't something I ever worried about. They're just not a storm that comes around here. I never knew that a person could be a tornado, too, coming into your life and throwing everything up into the air until you're just left standing there, surrounded by the broken pieces of what used to be your life.

Other words I could do.....bully, disaster, resilience
